Anti-Marrying Mon.

(From the Richmond Engineer.)
An infullible evidence of had habits and a propensity to lie, is exhibited ot marrying, the plea that women are too extravagant. In the great anti-marrying movement which has recenty assumed the character of social or ly assumed the character of social or-ganizations in France, England, and but yesterday in New York, may be recognized the animus of small men, who, having broken themselves down

The New York bachelors' committee, appointed to investigate the cost of maintaining a wife, have brought in a minimum bill of two thousand eight bundred and fifty dollars per annum, which includes, of course, necessary as well as unnecessary as penses, The "dress" bill is estimated at five hundred dollars; and "a summer trip to the country" is put down at another live hundred; then there are "two parties a year" which are given at four hundred, and some "etceteras" not explained, are estimated at two hundred. As it is not to be supposed that a man would have his wife adopt, for accommy's sake, the simple taste of our first mother, the for "dress" may be excluded from extravagant part of the exhibit, wh will make the whole amount to grumbled at, eleven hundred dolls. Should one of these economical bac lors make a practical investigation the subject, and report one year of date to his society, he would disco that his wife had paid this, little bil extravagance out of the fund he, previously devoted to billiards, wi parties, drinking saloons, fast hor washerwomen.
